

Did you know?

A key determinant of a child's poverty is the level of the mother's education

The higher the mothers education the less likely the chance the child will fall into poverty. This is why education of girls is so important and why we need to support orphanages such as Bottomley House. Help us to provide much needed funds to organisations striving to educate the less fortunate.

Unicef report